

ACCESS AND PARTICIPATION PLAN 2018

The University of Melbourne

The University of Melbourne's Equity Access and Participation Plan for 2018 continues and extends current access and participation activities. The Plan encompasses a suite of strategies and initiatives that can be categorised under five themes: Outreach, Access, Support, Research and Engagement. Throughout all categories, and particularly through Outreach and Engagement, the University collaborates with: secondary and primary schools and other universities, offering a variety of on and off-campus programs; TAFEs to offer alternative pathway entries to the University; and community to foster partnerships in support of educationally disadvantaged students. The University's priority equity groups are: Indigenous students, low SES students, regional and remote students, and students with disability. Students with non-English speaking background and women in non-traditional areas of study are also supported through the wide range of services and activities at the University.
