Additional Comments

Access to safe accommodation for regional students studying away from home is critical to the success of the student. Recent reports into the high level of sexual assaults in universities and in particular the residential colleges which are predominantly occupied by regional students highlights a key area of concern for regional student well being, as well as the financial implications these students face when living away from home. Support for safe residential colleges with good internet access/access to social support services that are subsidised for regional students should be a priority.
