

Hi,

I have a 9 year old in year 4 with Autism Spectrum Disorder and ADD.

He requires very minor adjustments from teachers. So far most teachers have refused to make adjustments stating they do not have time.

There seems to be a general lack of understanding regarding what adjustments are reasonable, what the rights of children with a disability actually are.

We have funding for a teachers aide at my son's current school. The teachers aide they hired has no training or qualifications or experience in working with children with a disability or supporting special needs kids

More training is needed for schools to be inclusive and supportive

Thanks
